

Pure trends

What's new and now for weddings

Surprise your loved one with a horse and carriage ride beneath Parisian lights

Give your proposal some ooh la la

Make your proposal soar

Widely regarded as the city of romance, Paris is one of the most popular places in the world for popping the question.

If you're looking to impress with an extravagant proposal, French company ApoteoSurprise arranges creative marriage proposals and romantic experiences for tourists in Paris.

From a limousine tour with a personalised message of love appearing on a giant screen near the Eiffel Tower, to a private aerial patrol drawing a white smoke heart in the Parisian sky – nothing is off limits in a bid to create a memorable proposal.

The company was launched in 2006 by Nicolas Garreau, a Frenchman who says he is determined to make other people's dreams come true.

He says: "My aim is to offer couples visiting Paris exquisitely romantic experiences based on enchanting scenarios."

Prices range from 490 euros (approx £430) to 15,900 euros (approx £13,950).

www.proposeinparis.com

Suits you sir – how men can cut their cloth

At a time when men are increasingly image-conscious, dressing for weddings is no longer as straightforward as one may think.

MyTuxedo, an online formalwear retailer for men, has issued these wise words to help.

Formal wedding: Accessories are key – wear a crisp white shirt with a silk or satin tie. Darker suits give an instant formal look.

Semi-formal wedding: Wear a crisply ironed shirt, blazer, dress trousers and a tie. A cotton, tweed or linen suit would be equally suitable.

Church wedding: Acceptable styles are the morning suit, or tuxedo. Belts should be slim and shiny while shoes must be shiny and polished. The colour depends on the shade of your suit, however black is usually a safe bet. Cufflinks bring personality.

www.MyTuxedo.co.uk

The choice of menswear is crucial